

Frequently Asked Questions – EOG/EOC Scores Release

1. Does this impact my student's final grades from last year?

No. Your student's final grades from last year will not change as a result of the release of new information on last year's test scores.

2. Does this impact my student's final grade point average from last year?

No. Your student's final grade point average from last year will not change as a result of the release of new information on last year's test scores.

3. Does this impact my student's class rank?

No. Your student's class rank will not change as a result of the release of the new information on last year's test scores.

4. Will this impact my student's ability to get into a college or university?

State test scores are a part of every student's transcript. However, as stated above, your student's final grade, grade point average, and class rank will not change from what they were at the end of the 2012-13 school year. This anticipated decrease in test scores impacts students across the state of NC. So, comparatively, we anticipate that Nash-Rocky Mount Schools' students will be just as competitive for college admission as they have been in the past.

5. Does this impact my student's athletic eligibility?

No.

6. Will this have any impact on my student's current schedule or his/her schedule in the spring?

No. The release of the new information on last year's test scores should not impact a student's schedule. Your high school counselors and/or principal can address questions regarding student schedules.
